PROGRAM PATHS

Every Way a Student Leaves Campus

Harborview International School

A program path is one way a student leaves campus under the school's name. This review names six paths. The five with a governing document are each read against all ten areas from their own documents, and the school's state for an area is the weakest state among them. A path with no governing document is not read against the areas; its absence is recorded once, under Governance & Policy.

A path reads At standard only when every area read for it is At standard. The school's state does not average the paths: one path without an instrument for a practice is enough for the school to read below At standard on it, since the practice is then not documented for every path the school runs.

READING THIS REVIEW

How the Evidence Was Read

Harborview International School

Every statement in this review comes from the nine documents listed on page 2, each read in full and assigned to the program path it governs. The review reads each path against the ten areas of the ETI360 Operational Capability Framework; each area carries a short code, shown beside its evidence.

HOW THE REVIEW READS

- 1

Documents assigned to program paths
Each document is assigned to the program path it governs and read section by section, so every statement traces to a path and to the place in its source.
- 2

Each path read on its own
Each path is read against all ten areas from its own documents only. Every evidence line cites the document, section, and page behind it.
- 3

Open items checked against the text
An open item records a practice that a path's documents do not describe. Each one is checked against the full text of those documents before it is recorded.
- 4

A state for each path, then for the school
A path's state for an area follows from its cited evidence and its open items. The school's state for an area is the weakest state among the paths that carry a governing document. A path with no governing document is recorded once, under Governance & Policy, rather than on every area.

READING THE STATES

AT STANDARD

The path's documents describe the practice in cited detail: at least three evidence lines, no structural open item, and no more than two procedural open items.

PROGRESSING

The documents describe the practice, and at least one part of it is not yet written down.

NOT EVIDENCED

The path's governing documents do not describe the practice.

OPEN ITEMS

Each open item names what the documents do not describe, with its class: structural (no governing instrument for the practice), procedural (a procedure or template not written down), or records (records not described).

Who decides. This review structures what the school's documents state. It does not certify outcomes or schedule the school's work: open items are the school's to weigh and sequence, and the school retains responsibility for its decisions and approvals. This sample edition shows the form of the review; its findings are drawn from documents written for a fictional school.

PROGRESSING

Five of the six program paths carry a governing instrument; exchange and homestay carries none. International trips run under a Board-approved policy with defined approval authorities. Team and activity travel is approved by its Director with the Head of School informed rather than approving, and that policy's review date has passed. Service and CAS guidelines are approved one level below the school's usual pattern and authorize unaccompanied placements without reference to the staffing manual.

NOT EVIDENCED

The six-step method governs international trips and, in short form, elementary day trips. Week Without Walls applies it but accepts an accredited provider's assessment for steps 1 through 5. Service and CAS placements use a one-page checklist in its place. Team and activity travel references no risk assessment, and that absence sets the school's state.

NOT EVIDENCED

Trip health summaries, auto-injector readiness, medication plans, and repatriation are documented for international trips and cross-referenced by Week Without Walls and elementary day trips. Athletics keeps a separate athlete medical record under the Athletic Trainer with no reference to the School Nurse. Service and CAS placements document no medical arrangement, and that absence sets the school's state.

Week Without Walls and athletics both run a documented post-program or post-season review with findings to the Head of School. SCOPE OF THIS REVIEW

This review reflects the nine documents Harborview International School provided as of the review date, 11 September 2026, each read in full. Each document is assigned to the program path it governs; the statements on pages 5–14 are drawn from those documents as written, each anchored to its source section and tagged with its path.

The six program paths on page 3 are those the school's documents name. A path the school runs that no document names would not appear here; the scoping conversation that opens each four-year cycle is where the school confirms the list.

Every open item records a practice not found in the path's governing documents. This review records what was not found; it does not assume undocumented practice exists, and it does not schedule the school's work.

This sample edition covers the school's own documents only. A Travel Program Review also reads the documents of each provider the school works with; that part is not shown in this sample.

WHO DECIDES

This review structures what the school's documents state. It does not certify outcomes or schedule the school's work: open items are the school's to weigh and sequence, and the school retains responsibility for its decisions and approvals.

A4 edition (210 × 297 mm). Also issued on US Letter.
